

STOCKHOLM

PHAIDON

Modernity

Originally in Sömda Stan, Modernity moved to this spacious cental location in April 2001. Since then the showroom has gone from strength to strength, largely due to the good taste and passion of its owner – not a Swede, but the Scotsman Andrew Duncanson. Famed the world over for his fine vintage collection, particularly by the grand masters of the Scandinavian style, such as Wegner, Warhola, Aalto, Juh. Iacobsen, Wijkala and Sarpainen, it is the occasional limited editions by various established Swedish designers like Mats Thelander and Jonas Bohlin that are really worth fighting over. In addition, Duncanson's charming way of cunningly sliding in work by his favourite emerging contemporary designers, such as Caroline Schmyer, makes Modernity a must for any design junkie in need of a serious fix.
