

Tray table designed by Mogens Lysell,
Denmark, 1960's

Brazilian rosewood, brass & black formica.

This Brazilian rosewood tray table was designed by the Danish designer Mogens Lysell in the 1960s. Even today, rosewood is considered to be both luxurious and rare but the material's opulence was certainly well known at the time of the table's creation. Lysell completed the piece with brass handles and a formica table top.
